

FACIAL POLISHING

Your skin will look fresh and healthy with this procedure, offering an improvement in the appearance of lines, wrinkles, scars, freckles and overall smoothness.

The Treatment

This treatment involves the application of a solution to facial skin, followed by manual exfoliation/dermabrasion. The benefits of these complementary procedures performed together is much better than when either treatment is performed separately.

Normally, the skin has a barrier, but once that barrier is penetrated the solution is absorbed, increasing collagen density and promoting rejuvenation.

Although this is a medical treatment, there is little or no downtime associated with it, so you can continue working and socialising as you would normally.

The treatment is performed at the clinic by Dr Saleh.

If you are using a Retinol Anti-wrinkle product, we suggest you stop using it 7 days prior to the facial polishing, restarting 14 days later.

To obtain the maximum benefit, carry out the recommended aftercare at home, post-treatment.

Following Treatment

After your treatment has been performed, your skin will look normal. Do not wet the skin until the following morning.

Your skin will feel dry and tight, regular water soaks and moisturiser may be beneficial. Your normal make-up can be applied during the first few days.

After 2-3 days the skin will begin to flake. You should then start using the cream provided. This should be applied up to 4 times a day for a week until the flaky skin has been removed. Rub vigorously, but do not make the skin sore.

Carry on with this regime until the flaky skin has been removed – this will take approximately 7 days.

This regime promotes new collagen growth by removing the top layer of dry skin by exfoliation.

For the first six weeks, if you are going out in the sun, strong protection must be worn in order to prevent the new skin from burning.
